The Art of the Home

Change Your Space, Change Your Life

Beyond Designs that Look Good

Julie Ann Segal and her Interior Design team at Metropolitan Interiors not only make spaces look good, they have a passion for making them feel good, too. They believe living environments should reflect the homeowner's spirit and enhance their wellbeing.

Aspects of the design, extending beyond look, comfort or functionality, can support clients in different areas of their lives. Combining Interior Design and Feng Shui principles, the team's goal is to create harmonious spaces — ones designed to be an expression of a client's unique style, needs and desires.

After redesigning spaces, even with simple changes like artwork, accessories, window treatments or wall finishes — the space feels different. "I now have beautiful, welcoming rooms. Every visitor wants to stay; they feel comforted and refreshed," remarks Kathy, one Metropolitan Interiors client.

Integrating Art – The Soul of a Space

As an art lover, Julie Ann appreciates how art can make a room. A piece's color, texture, shape, history and the story it has to tell can work harmoniously with the design, and even work to enhance a client's livelihood. Julie Ann notes, "It's important 50 | Exploring Art to be intentional about what kind of art you have, and where you place it. I want my clients to be surrounded by art that is nurturing to them."

Often clients don't know what art they like, or where to find pieces that fit. The team makes it easy to obtain it, like Mary, who says, "I am very particular about the art in my home. Julie Ann was truly in tune with me and found the perfect art. Working with a Designer, a whole new world of possibilities opens up."

20 Years Exceeding Expectations

Metropolitan Interiors' design projects range from residential to commercial, and several have been showcased throughout the Twin Cities. Last year, Julie Ann and team celebrated 20 years in business. "I am so grateful for past clients who believed in me," Julie Ann remarks, "from the time I started out at my dining room table to landing in the center of the action near International Market Square."

The team has access to innumerable resources for products and inspiration, whether the client is looking for traditional, contemporary or transitional design. Whatever their style, Metropolitan Interiors strives to create a "wow factor". And their commitment to clients goes deep; they truly value relationships, and pride themselves on exceptional customer service every step of the way towards creating homes and businesses of their clients' dreams.

"Julie Ann has a knack for figuring out what my tastes are, keeping within my budget, and helping me make my house a home. She's helped me decorate three houses, and I will be a lifelong client," comments Dana.

Accustomed to working with different design preferences and budgets, Metropolitan Interiors has, and continues to expand, its diverse product and furniture lines. If a client can't find what they're looking for, the team can help them find a custom piece that's consistent with their vision. By traveling and seeking out trends and innovations, the team is always discovering new possibilities and solutions to common design challenges.

The Metropolitan Interiors team has helped clients come home to harmonious spaces again and again — spaces that go beyond looking good, to helping people feel good too. "We recommend Julie Ann and her staff whole-heartedly," tells one couple. "We were very pleased with the ease and results of our collaboration."
